2008 Summer Reading Program

Catch the Reading Bug! & Metamorphosis @ Your San Diego Library

The Summer Reading Program buzzes into action at San Diego Public Libraries from June 15 through August 15. Many free special events like storytelling, puppet shows, music performances, science programs, arts and crafts projects and clowns are scheduled throughout the Library system.

"Summer is the best time to pick up a book to read for fun and to continue improving reading skills," said City Library Director Anna Tatár. "All San Diego children and teens are invited to take part in the Summer Reading Program."

For children age 3 to 11, the theme of the program is "Catch the Reading Bug! @ Your Library." The theme for teens age 12 to 17, is "Metamorphosis @ Your Library." Each participant will be given a reading log for recording titles he or she has read. Prizes will be awarded those who read during the summer.

The Library's Summer Reading Program began in 1924. The goals of the program have always been to keep children and teens reading, learning, improving their reading skills and stretching their imaginations during the summer. Reading improves literacy and helps students to excel in school.

Last year more than 26,000 youth participated in the program, a 13.5 percent increase from the previous year. The number of students who successfully completed the program by reading 10 or more books over the summer also rose by 10 percent over last year.

For more details about the program, fun activities and how to sign up, contact or visit your local library. A sampling of Summer Reading programs is listed on the next page. More information is available on the Library's website at:

www.sandiegolibrary.org

The Summer Reading Program features a bug theme for younger readers.

The program focuses on metamorphosis for young adult readers.

Summer Reading fun at your local branch!

San Diego Public Library branches are putting the final touches on their Summer Reading programs. Many branches will feature regular entertainment to help spark youngsters' interest in reading. Listed on this page is a sample of these programs.

Celia Lawley “Fiddle Girl”

Since age 5, San Diego native Celia Lawley has been singing & playing the fiddle. After 18 years of classical training and a degree in violin performance from USC, she began exploring country music. Some of her earliest musical memories are not of Bach and Beethoven, but the sounds of her dad’s Son’s of the Pioneers records floating through the house. In getting back to her roots she found her heart truly lives in the country. This program is appropriate for all ages.

Pure Goldwater

On June 11, Barry Goldwater, Jr. will talk about his new book Pure Goldwater, co-written with John Dean. The book includes unprecedented access to his father's correspondence, interviews, and behind-the-scenes conversations, shedding new light on the prickly 1964 candidate for president. The book reveals a much more complex and attractive man than the public got to know more than a generation ago.

The Winter of Frankie Machine

Don Winslow will discuss his most recent book, The Winter of Frankie Machine, which features a former mobster running a bait shop in San Diego, where he's trying to live life as a law-abiding citizen. The promise of $50,000 to help arbitrate a mob dispute is too great a draw, and he accepts the job. The meeting is a setup, and soon Frankie is attempting to evade his former associates and trying to find out which of his many old enemies is seeking revenge. The book is being made into a film with Robert DeNiro next year.

A Portable God: the Origin of Judaism and Christianity

Co-authors Rebecca Moore and Risa Levitt Kohn, Professors at San Diego State University, argue that Judaism did not pre-date Christianity, but rather that the two religions arose at the same time out of the same theology and environment. A Portable God tells the compelling story of how the first believers of these two important religions reacted to the dramatic changes of their time: Roman troops in their midst, destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem and an evolving understanding of God, resulting in the traditions that are today's Judaism and Christianity.

Until Our Last Breath

When the Nazis invaded the Soviet Union, the Jews of Lithuania were the first targets. Many Jews in the crowded ghetto of Vilna found ways to fight back, but the ghetto was liquidated. Until Our Last Breath tells the story of the Vilna resistance movement through the eyes of a young couple, survivors, who eventually participated alongside the Soviet army to liberate their city. Co-author Laurel Corona will discuss the book.

Traces of the Trade

Katrina Browne

First-time filmmaker Browne makes a troubling discovery – her New England ancestors were the largest slave-trading family in U.S. history. She and fellow descendants retrace the Triangle Trade: from their Rhode Island hometown to slave forts in Ghana to sugar plantation ruins in Cuba. They uncover the vast extent of Northern complicity to slavery while also stumbling through the minefield of contemporary race relations. The film offers powerful perspective on the black/white divide and was a 2008 Sundance Film Festival selection.

Election Day

Katy Seivigny, Filmmaker

Forget pie charts, color-coded maps and hyperventilating pundits. What's the street-level experience of voters in today's America? In a triumph of documentary storytelling, Election Day combines 11 stories—shot simultaneously on November 2, 2004, from dawn until long past midnight—into one tale. An entertaining, inspiring and sometimes unsettling story of citizens determined to vote on one fateful day.

The Ballad of Esequiel Hernández

Kieran Fitzgerald

In 1997, U.S. Marines patrolling the Texas-Mexico border as part of the War on Drugs shot and killed Esequiel Hernández, Jr. Mistaken for a drug runner, the 18-year-old was, in fact, a U.S. citizen tending his family's goats with a rifle.

He became the first American killed by U.S. military forces on native soil since the 1970 Kent State shootings. The film explores Hernández's tragic death and its torturous aftermath.
